

The Shared Priorities Map

How one CEO reframed OKRs so leaders actually had to work together.

01

List each leader's top priorities

Start with the usual exec OKR exercise. Every C-suite leader writes their top 3–5 for the next 12 months.

02

Tag each one solo or shared

For every priority, the leader marks it as something they can deliver alone or something they need a peer to unlock.

GTM and Product, coupled

- 01 GTM leader wants to agentify the sales team
 - 02 Needs Product to ship the agent surface area
 - 03 Neither side owns the outcome alone
 - 04 The shared priority becomes the tracked one

60%

of exec priorities require another exec to land

Most exec teams plan as five parallel companies. The Shared Priorities Map forces the dependency graph onto the page.

THE PUNCHLINE

The shared priority is the priority

Not your wishlist. Not their roadmap. The coupling between you.
