

Most AI rollouts fail at the table, not the store

GTM teams aren't blocked on tooling. They're blocked on imagination.

01

Bricks vs sets

Bricks: 200 yellow, 200 black, figure it out. Sets: a picture, instructions, a finished thing. Guess which one gets built.

02

Specification beats procurement

Buying another platform doesn't tell your team what to build. Naming the recurring task does.

Four recurring tasks worth specifying first

- 01 Inbound lead enrichment and routing within five minutes of form fill
- 02 Deal review prep — pulling the last 30 days of activity into a one-pager
- 03 Renewal risk scoring against your agreed-upon health definition
- 04 Weekly competitor and account-news digest for named accounts

Stop buying bricks. Draw the set.

The teams pulling away in 2026 aren't the ones with more seats.
They're the ones who whiteboarded what to build first.